Brief Description of Program:

Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) is a program used by the US federal government commission to increase the US Department of Defense efficiency by planning the end of the Cold War realignment and closure of military installations. One of the goals of the North Carolina Military Affairs Commission (NCMAC) is to coordinate community, regional and state efforts in preparation for the next BRAC and define a process that communities should follow to prepare for the next BRAC.

Allowable costs for the program include office supplies, travel expenses, salaries and benefits and utilities.
